"The Little Prince" (1943) is a novella by the French writer, Antoine de Saint-Exupéry. It is a philosophical fable about a young prince who lives on a small planet and travels to Earth. The story is a metaphor for the human condition and the importance of love and friendship. The book is a classic of children's literature and has been translated into many languages. It is a beautiful story that teaches us about the importance of love and friendship. The book is a masterpiece of children's literature and is a must-read for all children and adults alike.
